St. John's College is the second largest college of Cambridge, and was founded in 1511 on the site of St. John's Hospital, which dated from the 12th century. The picture shows the largest Court, built about 1509, in the centre of which is seen the Kirke White Memorial. The enclosed space in the foreground of the picture was formerly the site of All Saints' Church, pulled down in 1865.
